Dear Professor Barrett,

Thank you for your recent presentation to our parents dealing with the issue of parenting in the age of technology.

We have received very favourable comments from many of the parents who attended. Your discussion of the development of the adolescent brain and the attendant decision-making implications were of great interest.

Your comments about the use of technology provided parents with invaluable advice. As a School, we are considering how we may also use that advice for the benefit of our students.

Thank you again for an informative and pertinent address.

Yours sincerely,

Dr Ness Goodwin
Principal
